Laila El Sebaie Interview

Tarneem:
“What do you think are the real politics behind Coronavirus? also have you read about or heard of any conspiracy theories that have been spread or speculated around the real reason behind the Coronavirus?”

Laila El-Sebaie:
“All right, we first have to agree that the market is uncertain. And we all try to make up for this uncertainty. And from where I stand, you know, we have been monitoring and we have been, you know, understanding the politics behind Corona understanding the spread of Corona and also investigating its effect on the cotton on the on the economy and on financials and as a banker and as a stockholder, this is like a crucial information that we need, you know, in order to proceed, you know, and the world and the dominant countries are not as easy as we envision and they are always ready to stay in the lead, no matter what it takes, and According to the research that I have been, you know, finding so far. For example, news in both feet stop the global social networking sites proclaiming that China officially declared victory over the Coronavirus after publishing of photos of the Chinese president in one hospital, not wearing a mask. Follow this news and interesting question arose, you know, for many politicians and economists, you know, have the Chinese deceived the world with the Coronavirus to save their economy. This is something that never crossed the minds of anyone you know, but those who have planned it, obviously, this is what some of the Americans and their Europeans thought of after they sold their shares in high value added technology companies for so cheap to the Chinese government. You know, an action like this says a lot and an action like this brings up a lot of questions, you know, and according to another article published by the BCC The Chinese leadership used an economic tactic and efforts to compete with the US using the costliness government cover up of all time. You know, Chinese has resorted to implement a high political strategy to get rid of the Americans and Europeans. You know, it's a very good plan, you know, one of the two most dominant countries in the world, China and Russia and Europe in general. They have been investing to support the Chinese economy so why to super super pass the US economy like this, you know. By originating the Coronavirus outbreak China has sacrificed hundreds of it says citizens instead of sacrificing an entire nation, and with this tactic, China succeeded in tricking everyone and ripping 20 billion US dollars in two days, and the Chinese president has succeeded in deceiving their European Union and the United States. Of America at the sight of the world. He played an economic game with a tactical nature that was unthinkable. On the other hand, the Chinese central bank was unable to do anything in the face of the of the continuing fall of its currency. Suddenly, news spread from China that can buy and make anything that is unable to purchase masks to prevent the spread of the deadly virus. These statements by the Chinese president that he is unable to save the country from the virus led to a sharp drop in the purchase price of shares of technology computer technology companies in China thereafter, the empire for investors raised to offer investment shares for sale at very low prices and interactive offers never seen in history.”